

Dow-Corning Corporation Project Leadership Essentials Program

For over ten years now, Humentum has worked with Dow-Corning Corporation to provide immersive Project Leadership training for their international team of new as well as experienced project leaders. This blended-learning program integrates the power of simulation facilitated by a project leader with over 25 years experience.

Through the use of simulation, the Dow-Corning program inserts teams of project leaders into a realistic project environment where they encounter issues and problems similar to those they will face almost daily in their work. The simulation seamlessly lends to discussion of real-world problems and provides a forum for problem resolution and overall process improvement. Participants bring and resolve problems with which they are working, so the program actually facilitates a reduction of cycle time. The program further provides an opportunity for input / feedback from others, so new or improved best practices are common outcomes.

The Dow-Corning Project Leadership Essentials program integrates participants into a growing Dow-Corning cadre of experienced project leaders. Participants are able to tap this valuable resource as a sounding board, ensuring an on-going learning process as opposed to the more common and less impactful “learning event”.
